Meet Sister Jane

A Principal Sharing God's Love

She can often be found doing paperwork behind her desk, talking to students in the classroom or strumming her guitar early in the morning.

On the playground, children surround her with questions, or just for a hug.

As she walks through the school grounds, the petite woman greets people with a smile that lights up her blue-eyes.

She has even been known to willingly put her life on the line to sneak a peek at a boa constrictor or any other animal students bring in.

Meet Sister Jane Bonar, newly-appointed principal at St. Joseph School in Upland.

"I love working with children," she said. "I especially like the younger ones."

As principal, Bonar is in charge of 13 teachers and 350 students.

The 34-year-old has been a nun for 15 years, spending most of her vocation in California and Arizona. She spent 11 of those years teaching.

"I felt that I wanted to be able to share God's love with his people on a full-time basis," she said. "Some people do it through marriage. This was the best way for me to do it."

She has a bachelor's degree in English literature from California State University, Long Beach and a master's degree in religious education from Loyola Marymount University in Los Angeles.

Being appointed to work at St. Joseph was like coming home for Bonar, who grew up in Long Beach and Cypress.

This is her second job as a principal. Prior to her current position, Bonar spent two years running a Catholic school in Globe, Ariz.

"I am happy to be back in California," she said. "Praise the Lord."

As principal, Bonar gets to spend much of her time around her favorite little people.

"I consider being a principal like being a teacher," she said. "They also have to educate students. I try to be with the students as much as I can."

Her day begins at 7:30 a.m., when she teaches youngsters how to play the guitar. She then attends mass and walks the school grounds to make sure everything is in order.

After meeting with the teachers and taking care of paperwork, she visits classrooms to see how the children are doing.

Lunch time means keeping an eye on the youngsters.

Although she loves her work, being a principal has its disadvantages.

"I attend so many meetings," she said. "That is the least part I like about being a principal. It takes me away from my main job. I guess those are the hazards of the job."

Right now, her main project is raising funds to build a kindergarten.

She is also taking post-graduate courses in school administration through the University of San Francisco in Los Angeles.

Another goal is learning to speak Spanish. Bonar recently spent five weeks studying the language at the Mexican-American Cultural Center in San Antonio.

Bonar will probably stay at St. Joseph for a few years. A nun usually stays in one area for an average of three to six years, she said.

"We go wherever we are needed," she said.

Besides playing guitar, Bonar loves to swim in the ocean, walk, ride a bike and read.

After retirement, she plans to take up pottery.

"I like doing that, but right now I don't have much time for that," she said with a smile. □

Local fire stations observe prevention week

By Kimberly Heinrichs

Fire Prevention Week is upon us and both Upland and Rancho Cucamonga stations are observing it with an open house Saturday.

"Learn not to burn" is the theme this year and the stations are offering tours, talks and fire safety videotapes to get their message across.

The Upland Fire Department program runs from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Fire Station #1, 475 N. Second Ave.

The Foothill Fire Protection District station at 6627 Amethyst St. will be open to the public from noon to 5 p.m.

Both departments will be handing out pamphlets on fire safety tips, from crawling low in smoke to cigarette and kitchen safety. Firefighters will also discuss EDITH — Exit Drills in the Home — with families to help them form escape plans for their homes in case of fire.

An antique 1948 Mack fire truck will be featured at the Upland station. The truck, owned by Jim Kelber of The Mission Care Care Center, was used in Carpinteria many years ago and is now used for parades and other ceremonies.

In addition, firefighters will be giving first aid and "Jaws of Life" demonstrations throughout the day.

Continuous videos demonstrating fire safety techniques like "stop, drop and roll," and such famous fires as the one that consumed the Las Vegas MGM Grand Hotel will be shown, Inspector Stu Thompson, of the Upland department, said.

Refreshments and blood pressure checks are also planned to lure the 400 visitors the department expects, he said.

Technical sessions reflecting the theme, "Sharing the Environment," will stress the impact of environmental conditions on agricultural production and the impact of production agriculture on the environment.

Registration information will be available in December.

Assistant teaching principals named

By Marianne Aiken

Three new assistant teaching principals were appointed at the Sept. 24 meeting of the Cucamonga School District board of trustees.

The teaching assistant principal program was created to give principals additional administrative help, said

Cucamonga School District Superintendent John Costello.

The idea is to free up the principals so they can spend time in the classroom helping teachers, improving the instructional program, Costello said.

The new teaching assistant principals are Pamela Wright, a teacher at Los Amigos School who is also on the Rancho Cucamonga City Council; Cynthia Bush, a teacher at Cucamonga Elementary School and Linda Ortiz, a Guasti School teacher.

Another purpose of the program is to provide a career ladder for the district's teaching staff, Costello said.

It's a professional growth position, he said.

"We were looking for people who were either in an administrative program or who were willing to enter into an administrative program," Costello said.

Wright and Ortiz are enrolled at California State University, Fullerton, and Bush is close to receiving her administrative credential from the University of La Verne, Costello said.

"We're really excited about it," he said. "They're just going to do an outstanding job. The board is pleased we can provide this kind of additional training for our staff." □

Pets may offer perfect prescription

By Kathy Hall

Feeling lonely, unloved or a little depressed?

Maybe you forgot to hug your pet today.

Close to half of all physicians and psychologists who participated in a nationwide study said they have prescribed the companionship of pets as therapy for patients.

West Valley psychologists involved with the use of pets in therapy agreed about the success of such actions.

According to educational psychologist Diana Brockett, there are several reasons why pets are good for the psyche.

"Our need for love is basic and critical to our existence. But our society can't always meet that need," the Alta Loma resident said.

When our environment serves up more negative strokes than positive strokes we end up with what she called an "emotional deficiency." On the other hand, pets "offer us a sense of unqualified affection, attention and control over our environment."

According to Brockett, pets help us meet our "minimum daily requirement of positive strokes."

Those participating in the national survey cited conditions ranging from loneliness and depression to stress and high blood pressure as the symptoms for which pets were prescribed.

The doctors also reported recommending animal companionship to patients suffering from emotional and family problems.

The pet food company which conducted the survey found that nearly 91 percent of the 200 health professionals surveyed rated pet therapy as successful or very successful.

Carl Bailey of San Antonio Community Hospital is also convinced of the therapeutic value of domestic animals.

The therapist and recreation coordinator said puppies, kittens, large dogs, rabbits and a goat are weekly visitors for his patients in the hospital's mental health unit.

Bailey said the visits are arranged through the Humane Society of the Chaffey Community.

He feels that pets were exceptionally effective with patients suffering from severe mental and emotional difficulties.

"The puppies and kittens are helpful with severely depressed patients. For those who are catatonic — those who just stare into space — pets are a way to get in touch with these patients," he said.

(House of Tools)

Gluing exotic woods is difficult because of the high resin and oil content of these woods. Try gluing right after you machine the surfaces of these woods. If this isn't possible give the surface of the wood a light sanding just before spreading the glue. You need to machine or sand the surfaces of these woods prior to gluing in order to remove the resin and oil that has migrated to the surfaces. These resins & oil can sometimes be removed by giving the wood a quick alcohol sponge rinse.

To make good but inexpensive wood stain mix lap cement (an asphalt-based roofing product available at building supply stores) with turpentine. Mixing a half cup of lap cement with a half gallon of turpentine will give you a deep golden brown stain.

Diana Lockard, left, and Sally Shaw are two of the three BPW honorees to be recognized this month.

BPW clubs honor best achievers

By Suzanne Sproul

West Valley Business and Professional Women's organizations are honoring three achievers this month.

Sally Shaw, Diana Lockard and Dr. Jill Adler-Moore are co-recipients of the coveted BPW Woman of the Year award. This year is the first time the local groups have banded together to share the award amongst themselves.

The award will be presented during a gala event Oct. 22 at the Ontario Hilton.

"BPW works to recognize women locally who have contributed in their communities through their off-hour or professional work. Usually the local clubs honor their own women. This year they decided to combine their efforts and honor the women jointly," said Linda Yao of the Foothill Valley BPW.

The BPW was founded in 1919, she said, to help support and encourage all working women. Membership is not limited to a particular profession.

The organization works to elevate and strengthen the standards of women and their working conditions. Although

Kids will be kids

When big brothers and sisters headed off for the first day of school a month ago, many younger siblings wore long faces.

But the 100 or so 3- and 4-year-old children attending preschool playschool in Rancho Cucamonga finally had a chance to do what their older brothers and sisters are doing: sitting up straight, being quiet and keeping their hands in their laps.

From the looks on the children's faces at one of the six playschool classes sponsored by the city's parks and recreation department at the Lions Community Center and the Neighborhood Center, forced order was just fine.

Nothing could have been more enticing for the 21 children in Josie Imboden's Wednesday morning class than the promise of milk and cookies in trade for 5 minutes of quiet time.

Better yet, they got to play the "quiet game." The most quiet of the bunch was rewarded with a seat at the head of the class — and a chance to choose the next most quiet.

"They play and learn for 2½ hours," twice a week, explained Imboden, who has been teaching the 10-week classes year-round for the past six years.

"They learn how to socialize, and we familiarize them with numbers and letters," she said.

Most important, she said, "they can familiarize themselves with other children before they get to kindergarten."

Rather than a competitive learning environment, the sessions offer children a chance to learn how to adapt to others their own age, Imboden explained. Many of the children's families break the upscale Rancho Cucamonga mold, she said.

"Mainly, the mothers are home. They're just dropping the children off here for escape time, but more because they don't have any other kids at home, and the kids need to get used to being around other kids," she said.

Activities vary from class to class.

"Every day is totally different," said Imboden, who draws some of her ideas from her second job.

"I also work at Jasper school, teaching computers to elementary students," she said.

On the day that a Rancho Cucamonga Times reporter and photographer visited the Neighborhood Center, Imboden's 21 charges were busy pasting pictures clipped from magazines onto construction paper to make a mosaic answering the question, "How do I feel?"

Another table of children — mostly boys — built a structure from wood blocks, then quickly knocked it down in a clatter.

In the far corner, another group groped at puzzle pieces, trying to find the missing link.

Suddenly, it was time for clean-up time, prelude to the quiet game and the big reward: cookies.

The children successfully negotiated the quiet game, and before long were smacking their lips to treats and milk, and comparing notes on which Disney characters adorned their paper cups.

Imboden and her assistant, Judy Semple, surveyed the scene with calm, knowing smiles.

Another group of children were on their way to coping with the complexities of life. □

Their big brothers and sisters headed off for school almost a month ago, but last week marked the start of preschool playschool for about 100 children in Rancho Cucamonga. The city's parks and recreation department sponsors at least six different classes at the Lions Community Center and the Neighborhood Center.

women primarily are members, males are welcome to join, she said.

"Support networks such as the BPW continue to play important roles. I think women have made enormous gains, but it's clear there's a long way to go," said Lockard of the Foothill Valley BPW.

Lockard has just completed her doctorate in education at The Claremont Graduate School. She is a board member of the Citrus Community College District.

She also has been a college administrator and dean of students at Pitzer College in Claremont.

"There is a real difference between the East and West coasts as far as the advancement of women in education," she said.

Because of that she helped establish Women in Higher Education in 1978 which later gave rise to California Concerns. The group gives women support, skills training and the opportunity to advance themselves through business contacts.

"We have come a long way, but women still have a great deal of things to accomplish so they can feel good about themselves, personally and professionally," agree Shaw of the Ontario BPW.

Shaw is a nurse practitioner specializing in obstetrics and gynecology.

"My profession alone keeps me very involved in women's issues," she said.

She conducts workshops about Premenstrual Syndrome and works with a local herpes support group. She also is an American Cancer Society volunteer and the president-elect of the California Coalition of Nurse Practitioners and president of the Inland Empire chapter of the group.

Adler-Moore of the Upland BPW is a California State Polytechnic University biological sciences professor.

Plane folks enjoy silver birdwatching

By Paula Monarez

On-lookers first see its lights as the flying machine comes up over the horizon.

From far it looks more like an alien ship than an airplane.

As the huge, silver bird glides overhead, spectators silently stand in awe.

"That is really something," Ann Williamson said as the plane descended. "How can something that huge fly so nice and smooth. It's fascinating."

Williamson, sitting in a white pickup, isn't talking about the Concorde or any other fancy plane. But just ordinary airplanes.

The 69-year-old likes looking at them.

She is not alone.

Every weekend, starting at about 6 p.m., people begin lining up their cars alongside Archibald Avenue, near the Ontario International Airport runway, and wait.

Some stay for hours, others for a few minutes. But all are here to see the planes land.

"It is kind of like going to the drive-in," said Alfred Nunez, who brings his 6-year-old son, Alfred Nunez Jr., to see the planes every Saturday night. "I like the way they land. The lights are really nice."

Nunez and his son often stay until 9 p.m. or until the little boy gets tired.

"He makes me come out here," the father said with a chuckle. "He loves watching the planes."

Like Nunez, most people are regular plane watchers.

Williamson and her daughter, Sprintse, try to catch the show at least three times a week.

"My mother has emphysema and seeing the planes help her to sleep," Sprintse Williamson said. "It is so relaxing and peaceful out here."

Although Miguel Mendez of Ontario probably would stop to watch the planes every chance he could, his wife, Fidelia, is not so agreeable.

"Can you believe this," the 24-year-old said. "Everytime we pass Archibald, we stop. Instead of just parking and, well, having a good time, we park and watch airplanes. He's really a cheap date."

Rod and Linda Robbins of Upland stop at least once a week.

"I like to drop by and make sure they are still flying," Rod Robbins said. "Sort of makes you feel like everything is OK."

Craig Corzine, a veteran plane watcher, decided his nephew, Louie James Noble III, would enjoy the planes.

Dave and Debbie Lockwood of Riverside join crowds every weekend along the Archibald Loop to watch the planes land at Ontario International Airport.

Miguel and Fidelia Mendez of Ontario enjoy a night out watching their small television in between watching the big silver birds land at Ontario Airport.

'Captain EO' still just another flick

By Linda Billington
McClatchy News Service

ANAHEIM — "This is the best

Planes/ from Page 18

"My dad used to take me," the 26-year-old said. "So I wanted to do the same for Louie."

It was a first time experience for Dave and Debbie Lockwood. "I like the sound of the loud jets," Dave Lockwood said. "The air seems to stop when they pass."

There is a lot of talking and joking while people wait for the next plane, but as it passes by no one speaks. They sit and stare.

"I don't know of any other airport where you can get this close," Miguel Mendez said. "This place is unique. The planes float right over you. You can feel the car shake. They fly so close you could throw a rock and hit the darn things."

When the weather is warm, most plane watchers bring out their folding chairs and E-ride at Disneyland," says the woman next to me as the meteor swoops into our laps.

"E-rides," as Disneylanders refreshments to enjoy with the night show.

"Sometimes we bring hamburgers or maybe a pizza," said Sprintse Williamson. "It's really fun."

Carting food and beverages is not enough for the Mendezes. The couple also bring their television.

"Well, there is nothing to do between each landing," Miguel Mendez said with a laugh.

The couple often try and guess the make of the airplanes and the airlines.

Although the noise level is deafening as the airplanes pass overhead, speculators seem to find the area tranquil.

"It is so relaxing out here," Corzine said. "Watching those planes lets you take your mind off your troubles."

know, are the top of the heap. We're talking the Matterhorn, rubbing cutlasses with the Pirates of the Caribbean, and waltzing with ghosts in the Haunted House. You know, the good stuff.

But the woman and I aren't on any of those rides. Instead, we're tucked into a brand-new theater in Tomorrowland watching "Captain EO."

"Captain EO," in case you haven't been reading People mag lately, is the newest attraction at Disneyland and at Florida's Walt Disney World. The musical, 3-D space fantasy might've slipped in without too much fanfare, except that it was produced by George Lucas, directed by Francis Ford Coppola and stars Michael Jackson, who also wrote and performed the score.

P.S. It cost $30 million. For 17 minutes. Making it by far the most expensive attraction in a Disney theme park.

Opening weekend, Sept. 19 to 21, 105,965 people lined up to see "Captain EO." While 699 other folks and I watched one of the non-stop screenings, the rest of the 105,000-plus seemed to be waiting their turn. The line stretched from the recesses of Tomorrowland to the Main Street

Enrollment figures at Chaffey College show 3.3% decline

Enrollment is down at Chaffey College, according to the latest figures.

Figures taken after the 10th day of class Sept. 26 showed students were taking 3.32 percent fewer credit hours this fall compared to last fall, said college President Jerry Young.

The latest numbers contradict figures reported after the first day of classes Sept. 15, which showed enrollment was up 1.5 percent compared to the same time last year.

"What we think happened was we had a policy change on drops and adds so people were able to drop and add along the way," Young said. "Last year they were not able to do that until late. That may have had an impact on the numbers."

Students are taking about 98,600 credit hours, compared to approximately 102,000 last fall, Young said.

The state pays the college for the number of hours taught, not the number of students taking classes.

There are about 10,000 students on campus.

"Because summer school was up a little bit this year, we're projecting by year-end, that decrease will probably be closer to 2 percent," Young said.

The 1986-87 budget was written with the anticipation of a 2.5 percent drop in enrollment, he said.

The college had an aggressive recruitment effort this year, which may have brought people in early, Young said.

Pets /from Page 11

He cited one example of a girl who would not talk or communicate with anyone on the hospital staff.

"We put a puppy in her lap and tears started to roll down her face," he recalled.

Since patients look forward to their visits with the animals, Bailey said pets facilitate goal setting skills and positive attitudes.

He added that when patients leave the hospital they sometimes arrange to adopt a favorite pet visitor.

Betty Fryman, of the Humane Society of the Chaffey Community said additional volunteers would make it possible for more hospitals to have pet visitation programs like the one at SACH.

"We aren't doing as much of this as we'd like," she said.

Pat Ogg said when lack of volunteers ended humane society pet visits at Suntown Convalescent Hospital in Montclair, staff members began bringing their own pets to work.

She added that the nursing home also has a resident cockatiel named Pretty Boy.

"He used to come out of his cage and sit with patients while they ate lunch or had coffee," she said.

However, Pretty Boy has been spending a great deal of time resting in his cage lately.

It seems he overestimated the ability of his clipped wings and tumbled from his perch, fracturing his breastbone.

Off-Road Grand Prix race action set in West Valley

BRADBURY — "The Wildest Show on Wheels," Mickey Thompson's Off-Road Championship Gran Prix, concludes the 1986 season series at one of its most popular racing locations, the Los Angeles County Fairgrounds in Pomona on Saturday, Oct. 11 at 7 p.m.

"We're very pleased to be 'coming home'" said show producer Mickey Thompson, "... Pomona has become the unofficial home of the Off-Road Championship Gran Prix and everyone is excited about coming back to the fairgrounds for the season finale."

"The facility has just undergone a multi-million dollar remodeling program by the Fair Association, which has made the new Fairplex one of the most pleasant locations for people to bring their whole family out for an evening of action-packed entertainment," said Thompson.

The Off-Road Championship Gran Prix race course will be laid out right in front of the fairground's comfortable box and reserved grandstand seats and will feature all the bumps, jumps, turns and berms that have made the electrifying "Chunk of Baja" courses so famous.

All the top teams and drivers will be making their final 1986 season appearance at Pomona on Oct. 11 — Team Toyota's strong pairing of Steve Millen and Ivan Stewart in the Grand National Sport Truck class will be challenged by the Fords of Jeff Huber and John Swift, Mazda rotary-powered trucks of Glenn "Fireball" Harris and pro-rally champion Rod Millen, the Chevrolet S-10 of Danny Thompson and the Dodge of Walker Evans.

The action promises to be hot in all the other featured classes as well, including the sizzling single seaters of the Volkswagen Super 1600, the incredible "All-Terrain Super Sports" UltraStocks, the wild 3 & 4 Wheel ATVs, and the zappy Odysseys.

Racing starts at 7 p.m., gates will open to the public at 5 p.m.

Upland remains unbeaten, shares Baseline top spot

Upland remained unbeaten and grabbed a share of the early lead in the Baseline League football standings Friday with a 35-10 win over Chaffey.

The Scots are 1-0 in the Baseline League and 4-0 overall. They will host Claremont Friday night.

Ten quick point put Chaffey on the road to an apparent upset against Upland. The Highlanders rallied, however, to lead 14-10.

"We were a bit too tight and that (early deficit) made us flat," said Upland coach Pete Merandi. "But our maturity showed. I hope it's the sign that we're a good football team."

In other Baseline League games, Claremont toppled Don Lugo 13-3 and Damien beat Alta Loma 28-13.

The loss dropped Alta Loma to 0-3-1. Damien running back Eric Henley rushed for 295 yards and three touchdowns in the game.

"Alta Loma is an improved team," said Damien coach Dick Larson.

Blankenship claims honor

Upland's Bill Blankenship won the 1986 Top Driver's trophy at the National Seppedboat and Water Ski Association's Nationals held at Lake Havasu.

Blankenship's ski race team beat out entries from all over the west and Australia. Another Uplander, Paul Spencer, finished close behind.

Disney theme parks (the one in Japan may eventually get the film) are the only places you can see "Captain EO." Ever, even unto eternity. The two original songs, "We Are Here to Change the World" and "Just Another Part of Me," won't show up on MTV, say the Disney people. You gotta be there.

So what's all the fuss about?

The plot would fit on one of Michael Jackson's sequins. In longhand.
